GUEST LECTURE ON “OPPORTUNITIES FOR HIGHER EDUCATION AND RESEARCH IN UK”

The Placement and Training cell of Nirmala College of Pharmacy organized a guest lecture on opportunities for higher education on 12/02/2019 in the seminar hall. The speaker was Dr. Paul Elliott (Associate Dean of Applied Sciences, International University of Huddersfield, UK). Final year B. Pharm students attended the seminar. The speakers dealt with opportunities for pharmacists in the U.K. Also, he dealt with higher education and research opportunities in the U.K.

The speaker brought to light the numerous educational opportunities that pharmacists can explore. Also spoke about pursuing further education and specialization through post graduate studies like clinical pharmacy, pharmacy practice or pharmaceutical practice. The UK is a hub for research and innovation, providing students with excellent opportunities to engage in groundbreaking research projects. Working alongside esteemed professors and researchers can be a transformative experience for aspiring academics. Many UK universities prioritize employability and career development. They offer career services, internships, and work placements to enhance students skills and increase the chance of securing a desirable job after graduation.
